PASTOR SLOCUM SPOKE SHOP TALK ON HABIT AT CRESCENT ARMS CO. Is Tyrant Compelling Obedience-May reau Delegates Elected. Be Good or Evil.

Rev. Joel B. Slocum, D. D., address ed the men of the Crescent Fire Arms company at the Y. M. C. A. shop meet-ing at noon on Thursday. Mrs. George T. Lord sang very pleasing solos. Be-fore the large and attentive audience the speaker spoke on Habit, and in part he said:

The word "habit" comes from a word which means to have. Habit is something that has possession of you, not merely something which you possess. Habit is a tyrant that compels you to obey, rather than a weak slave whom you control with your slightest wish.

There is a picture of the power of habit very vividly drawn for us in the book of Proverbs. In brief but startling words there is presented the sorting words and a man who has lost ry spectacle of a man who has lost himself to the power of drink. This man went down into the depths of a carousal, until a hog, wallowing in the mose repulsive mire would be clean by comparison. Then this foul wretch grunts that as soon as he is able he will seek it yet again. That is the logical outcome of a relentless habit. Does any real man welcome that kind of slavery Gradual in Growth. Habits are not so much the things we do, as the things that do us. But we do, as the things that do us. But we must not suppose that they swoop down on us suddenly and with full grown power. They have their birth in little tendencies and temptations that at first appear to be harmless. But by and by these pigmies become giants. The process begins with a mere desire. The desire develops into an inclination—an appetite. Before long this appetite finds an opportunity for gratification. That act is repeated again and again until it has gained the mastery over that man's will. The very repetition increases the power of the habit; for each act leaves the desire stronger and the ability to resist weaker. There are some that reach that conclusion sooner than others, but ther is only one conclusion to the whole miter. There is terrible logic in the scriptural state—others, but ther is only one sion to the whole mtter. There is terrible logic in the scriptural statement that sin when it is finished brings forth death.

There was a man who trained a boat the way matters stand it is hard to tell exactly what should say. If There was a man who trained a boa constrictor from the day when he obtained it, when it was small and young, until it became a full grown snake. One day in an exhibition before a great audience the man coiled the big reptile about his body and received the applause of the audience. Then something happened. The audience thought that it was a part of the show. something happened. The audience thought that it was a part of the show, But it wasn't. For once the snake tried the game of being master. He tightened his coils until the man was a mere pulp. That is a fair sugges-tion of the treachery and power of The darling sin which a man years been hugging to his has for breast turns, some day, and gives his one-time master a death thrust. Form Good Habits. And now, since the principle that controls in all habits is the same, why Personals.

Miss Ida Beauchamp, who has been if for two weeks with grip, is now improving.

Prod Olin is visiting his parents in all habits is the same, why not resolve that we will form only habits that are good? It is a great thing to live in such a way that our lives will be dominated by only that kind of mastery that keeps our thoughts pure and our actions right.

There is One who has power for every demand that can possibly be made upon us. That One knows what temptation is, for He met it and conquered. If you men are tempted and tried and are in danger of losing the battle, I ask you today to but your hand up into the hand of Jesus and find in Him in my motives were, what my plans were, the sufficiency for all your needs. Form the habit of prayer and the realization that He who was once tempted is near you to comfert and sustain.

the way matters stand it is hard to tell exactly what I should say. If this information had been given some time ago it would have been different, but now I look at it from a different viewpoint and my views have changed as well as my mode of life.

"I must do my duty in this case to God and man and in this thing my duty is on the side of God. My heart bears no malice or hatred, my duty to the law and to District Attorney Whitman compels me to remain on the side of the law and I will testify the side of the law and I will testify the side of the law and I will testify in the new trial if Becker has one, to the truth, and only the truth, as I did in the previous trial. I have nothing to add or subtract from what I testified to before. My only hope is that there may be a new trial for Becker, "The claim which has so long been made will be settled once for all, that is that the case was a frameup. I want to be relieved of the suspicion that has brought so much suffering to my mind, that there was a frameup my mind, that there was a frameup to shove the responsibility for the crime off on some innocent man. If Vaudeville and Photoplays.

The movies at the Auditorium Thursday were quite appropriate to the time of the year. From Rail Splitter to President is a characteristic glimpse of the noble life of Lincoln. This is a Universal two reel picture and the impersonation of Lincoln makes it seem real. The other pictures are of the best. Lizzie P. Raymond, a clever comedienne, makes a hit with her songs and jokes. Her illustration of a countryman in England at the grand opera is giving in a pleasing manner. Major James Doyle, the vest pocket comedian, certainly earns his name. The misfortunes of a small person are revealed by the clever comedian. Vest Pocket Comedian just suits Major, for he is only 28 inches high. The vaudeville programme concludes with the fine musical act entitled The Days East and West. The feature of this act is the onless charge of two complete sets.

and West. The feature of this act is the quick change of two complete sets of scenery. The three in the act have mastered the violin so that they are able to give some very good imitations, especially the imitation of the benediction at an old country church. The programme ends with a laughable moving plcture. Four Proposals.
